INTRODUCTION

The role of hyperlipoproteinaemia as a risk factor in coronary heart disease and is fairly well established. The drugs available for the treatment of hyperlipidaemia vary markedly in their chemical structure, their mechanisms, and their clinical response.\(^1\)

HMG-CoA reductase inhibitor (Statins) introduced in the 1980s, this class of compounds are the most efficacious and best tolerated hypolipidaemic drugs. They competitively inhibit conversion of 3-Hydroxy-3-methyl glutaryl coenzyme A (HMG-CoA) to mevalonate (rate limiting step in CH synthesis) by the enzyme HMG-CoA reductase.\(^2\)

The world statins market is changing, with patent expires and maturity of the landmark product Lipitor (atorvastatin). Statins are at the forefront of strategies to combat dyslipidaemia, being pivotal in the prevention of coronary heart disease. Consequently, those drugs are one of the most widely-prescribed and most lucrative sectors of the pharmaceutical industry, with total revenues exceeding $26 billion in 2008. Importantly, the world statins market is poised to undergo a period of rapid and dynamic change, with the generic statin sector growing particularly strongly in the years ahead. When will annual sales of generic statins exceed those of branded statins? Which branded statin will continue to achieve year-on-year sales growth during the coming waves of generic competition? Statins: The World Market, 2009-2024 answers these vital questions – amongst others - and provides the essential information that you need to take advantage of opportunities in the changing statin drugs market from 2009 onwards.\(^3\)

Atorvastatin is a newer statin is more potent and appears to have the highest LDL-CH lowering efficacy at maximal daily dose of 80mg. At this dose a great reduction in TGs is noted if the same was raised at baseline. Atorvastatin has a much longer plasma t\(^\frac{1}{2}\) of 18-24hr than other statins, and has additional antioxidant property.\(^4\)

METHOD
